Brand Guidelines
The basics

The Twitter logo is a powerful symbol for what’s happening in the world and what people are talking about right now. Here are some rules of the road when using our logo.

- Only show the logo in Twitter blue or white.
- Don’t alter, rotate, or modify the logo.
- Don’t animate the logo or make it talk, chirp, or fly.
- Don’t surround the logo with other birds or creatures.
- Don’t accessorize the logo with extra elements like speech bubbles.
- Don’t anthropomorphize the logo.
- Don’t overemphasize the logo.
- Don’t use previous versions of the logo.
- Follow the clear space guidance in this document.
Clear space and minimum size

When you’re using the logo with other graphic elements, make sure you give it some room to breathe. The empty space around the logo should be at least 150% of the width of the logo. To ensure the logo maintains its visual impact, do not go any smaller than 16 pixels wide.
The Twitter logo is always either blue or white. It must be legible and maintain the integrity of its form.

When placing the logo on an image, always use the white logo version. For images with a light background, we suggest applying a 10-20% black tint to the entire image to maintain legibility of the white logo.

And never show the Twitter logo in black or any other colors.

Okay, we do have one exception: some limitations with color printing may apply. This is the only time the logo is permitted to be displayed in black with prior permission from Twitter.
The primary reason we use the logo pairing lockup is to indicate that an account or hashtag is on Twitter. When pairing a username or hashtag with the Twitter logo, make sure our logo is in blue or white. Observe our clear space rules, and scale the text to 100% of the height of the logo. Feel free to use a typeface that’s from your brand’s design system.

Check out our logo pairing lockup templates at brand.twitter.com.
When using the logo alongside other social icons to represent your presence on Twitter, you can use the logo in either blue or white, displayed at equal size and height to the other social media icons. When using the logo in white, the background color may be set in any color.

It is preferred that our logo is represented free of a container but if a container works best for your needs, feel free to use either a circle, square, or square with rounded corners.

Our typeface is bold, simple, and universal — it allows us to emphasize the voices on Twitter.

For Tweet treatments, we use Helvetica Neue Bold for the name, the Tweet itself, and timestamp, and Helvetica Neue Regular for the username.

When you pair the logo with a username and hashtag, feel free to use a typeface that’s from your brand’s design system.
Tweets represent the building blocks of the Twitter experience and the real voices that drive everything that happens on our platform. When you show Tweets in marketing, make sure they are real and exist on the platform. Each Tweet should be displayed verbatim — don’t alter, edit, or fabricate any aspect of a Tweet’s message.

- Don’t pull elements out of context, editorialize, or discriminate based on content.
- Don’t alter usernames, real names, or hashtags (preserve the caps, lowercase, numbers, underscores, etc).
- Always credit Tweets by displaying the account’s full name and username, and credit the Twitter platform by using the Twitter logo.
- Twitter can’t provide permission to use third party Tweets, logos, or images. If you’re using third-party content, please consult with your legal team to assess any legal risk. If the Tweets are your own, you’re free to use or display them, so long as you comply with these guidelines.
Tweet treatments

Variations

There are many ways to represent a Tweet, depending on the context, audience, and level of detail you want. When showing Tweets, we recommend including as much context as possible. Using this detailed treatment will help your audience know that the content can be found on Twitter.

Check out our Tweet treatment templates at brand.twitter.com.
Using Twitter marks

The Twitter marks include, but are not limited to, the Twitter name, Twitter logo, the term “Tweet” and any word, phrase, image, or other designation that identifies the source or origin of any Twitter product. Always capitalize the T in “Twitter,” as well as all noun and verb versions of “Tweet” and “Retweet.”

Naming and visual design (logos, websites, products)

Never use Twitter logos or icons as your own. Please don’t incorporate Twitter’s marks, in whole or in part, in the name of your company, product, service, website, domain name, application, or website.

Books or publications (education, instructional, guides, conferences)

Remember to always be clear that it’s about Twitter, not by Twitter. Please name your books and publications something unique, and do not incorporate Twitter’s marks (Twitter, Tweet, Retweet, and Twitter logo) in the title or cover.

Merchandise

A product branded with the Twitter name or logo is a reflection of Twitter. Unless the Twitter logo is locked up with a hashtag or username, or you’re using it with other social media icons, we don’t allow others to make, sell, or give away anything with our name or logo on it.

Publishing Twitter content
